The image shows a large grid divided into two equal halves by a vertical center line. The grid is empty. The grid consists of 20 columns and 20 rows. The center line is a vertical line that runs through the middle of the grid, separating the left half from the right half. The grid is composed of thin black lines that form a grid of small squares. There are 10 columns on the left side of the center line and 10 columns on the right side. There are 20 rows in total, extending from the top to the bottom of the grid.
